Washington, June 13.—The financial condition of the country, as viewed from a Treasury standpoint, shows general improvement. Bank and commercial failures are fewer, Europe is buying our grain in greater quantities, gold shipments have cassed, at least for the present, confidence is being restored, and money is not as turbed. The Treasury act gold altoney is not so tight.

The Treasury act gold altoney for the West will have the effect to further increased the demand for small money in the West will have the effect to further increase the femand for small money in the West will have the effect to further increase the femand for small money in the West will have the effect to further increase the researcy gold. The rate of exchange is sufficiently high to warrant the shipment of gold abroad, but the fact that commercial paper is for sale in London has a determent effect. There is a general felling that the worst is passed, the weaker financial twittutions and bustness firms have interested to the stronger of having weathered the financial storm.

Just a conversation today with Secretary Carlisle it was suggested to hum that there was a lack of precise information toaching the amount of silver coined up to the present time, and also as to the name in which the presents croimed up to the present time, and also as to the name in the first time, and also as to the name in the first time, and also as to the name in the present time, and also as to the name in the present time, and also as to the name in the present time, and also as to the name in the present of builton. You are even able to look down upon the booths far beneath and note how small the people appear from your post of observation. Here lies the British section, there that of the United States, below the section of the United States, below the section of the United States, and particularly the section of the United States, and particularly the section of the Empire of Cermany might be assembled beneath the roof of this building. The statement gives one some slight notion of what a covering there is over this 'largest building of the kind over constructed.' as the guide book hath it. Now that you are form the supports, with a feeling of admiration the mind is wholly given up to the contemplation of these great arkes, balanced, as it were, on a mere point. Upon reaching the terminan, you find that it is necessary to mount higher still by stairs, then cross the building through out upon a platform extending along the roof.

out upon a platform extending along the roof.

Far away to the north may be seen the different foreign building, while to the northwest many of the State buildings, beautiful in outline and proportion, with gilded towers glittering in the warm sunshine, or dark domes standing out proudly against the blue sky, while gay flags ditter in every breeze. Before you is the Government Building of glass and iron, the state of the state of fective beauty yet simulating the careless-ness of natural scenery.

Its shores are washed by the lagoon over whose vaters the gondolas glide, the gay attire of the boatmen giving color to the picture. In the distance may be seen the arched bridge leading to the Hooden, or Golden Partino, built by the Japanese Government. Looking across the lagoon the severe outlines of the Woman's Build ing are in sight; also the Children's, that of Pack and the White Star Line. Then your attention is held by the gorgeon-site you is the grand portal, which con-sists of a series of receding arches entirely overlaid with gold leaf.

Nestling among the tree set the south-rement of the island may be seen the smoke-stained walls of Davy Crockett's log cabin, an appropriate feature, illus-trating the pioneer life in this country. The authers natiled above the door are suggestive of the dellection repasts ones served within those made-thinked wills. Now the Kietric Building comes with in your range of wison as you pass on.

and dignity to the structure. At either end the roof forms a dome, while showe the portals are storied towers. At interunder the roof forms at the structure of the roof of women whose attitude express strength and energy.

Having passed beyond the range of these wonders you are glad to rest awhile and look out over the lake. There the and look out over the lake. There the white gulls are skimming and darting down into the water, sending showers of drops in every direction; the ever changing colors of the lake varying from white green, dotted here and there by white walls of vessels, with the clouds floating above makes a restiful and charming picture. With a sigh of regret you turn into the passes way and descend to the ground floor, feeling that, although man has accomplished marvelous things, there are yet greater heights to climb. So much for the trip around the roof of the Manufactures Building.

watchful eyes and open eyes, would nob give to you the most prudent insight-oil life, but it might give to you the most truthful pictures of man's worst weak-nesses. You watch the different forms in which these weaknesses take shape and to see with what looseness whist key causes men to dir themselves is a study, a mystery, perhaps a shame. Some "full my" while others "libot off," some get np" while others "blow off," some get cunning while others get open, some get generous while others grow closer with overy drink and as mean as they are close. Watch them as they-come or go or loiler in the room. All have their conceits. With one the waters are troubled, with another the sun shines bright. One must pose as a picture of sadness, while the other is the soul of wit and humor. The air of business is not absent from these resorts, for here comes in a man who would impress you with his business importance, and it is with his business importance, and it is wonderful how well he plays his part. He wears a business suit, walks to the counter with a business stride, brushes a He wears a business soit, walks to the counter with a business stride, brushes a little flour from the sleeve of his coat in an easy business way, sphs like a business man, takes a sip of water in a business style, drinks, pays his money and away he goes out of the door—all business, and you might think he was reshing to his business, but it is only to the same thing once more. People with stee never and an appetitie for the picturesque can see all the kingdoms of the earth for 25 cents on the plaisance. They can soar nearer heaven than ever they were before, and look down on their fellow creatures from a more lofty standpoint. But the nerves are a necessity, seeing that a wickerwork flooring is all that interposes itself work flooring is all that interposes the standard of the standard of the vantage point and the hereafter, for the vantage point and the hereafter, in the vantage point and the flooring in the vantage point of the vantage of the vantag vantages as that would be lost to all sense of right feeling. The Frenchman who halloos "go slow" is the commander-in-chief. It is he who issues them the French orders to the pretty saltons in blue suits as to when they can salton in blue suits as to when they can salton in the without bruising the toes of bystanders without bruising the toes of bystanders and the salton in the salton in the salton is to look at a gold with all when the salton is to look at a gold without the salton is to look at a gold with the salton is a few texts. The passengers seem to stand music, dancer's songs, queer crys of the records from beneath them. This will be read to the motion of sound, barely distinguishable the one from the other. There is a law to most own, and the cond-capped tower, the gorge couples of the fair peep from their gray vestment. The myriad towers of the plainance look pigmy and distorted in their perspective.

CLOVER.

The prospect for clover this season is as excellent as ever known in the history of the State. From all parts of the State the report is very fine. The per cent. is placed at 98.

TORACCO.

The continuace of rainy weather has greatly interfered with the transplanting of tobacco. The plants are in a health; condition, largely above the average. The per cent. in acreage, 104. Condition o plants, 94.

TIMOTHY.

APPLES.
Frosts and high winds have played havoc with the apple crop. The per cent. is 66.

PEACHES.

The outlook for this crop is better than for apples. The per cent. being placed at 80.

All sections report a prospect for a eavy crop of Irish potatoes. Per cent.,

Hoos.

There is nothing to add to my last month's report as to the crop of hogs. The scarcity still exists, caused by the fattening of all kinds for the high market. The per cent. as to last year is placed at 73. The average number of brood sows is placed at 70. 1 at 70.
Very respectfully,
